From the airport:

Asker is situated 20 kilometers south west of Oslo and the hotel is overlooking the Oslo fjord. The easiest way to get to Asker is to take the airport express train from Oslo airport to Asker. Just be careful to step on the right train. Only every other train goes as far as Asker, the remaining 50 % stops in Oslo. But don't worry – a train to Asker departs every 20 minutes. The ticket is 200 NOK. Make sure you buy a ticket from the machines or swipe your card in the turnstiles before boarding the train. Once you arrive in Asker the hotel is only a short cab fare away.

From Oslo:

There are regional trains departing approximately every 10 minutes from the central station (and the subway station Nationaltheatret) in Oslo. To find the exact times for your train check trafikanten.no. The easiest thing to do once you arrive at Asker station is to take a cab to the hotel.

Other information:

If you are staying for an extra day or have a couple of hours to see Oslo before you go back and would like to see if there's a concert, exhibition, sporting event or a play on or if you'd like to find a nice restaurant or bar, this is the site for you.

The weather in Oslo in February can be quite chilling. Prepare for temperatures between 0 and -15 degrees. To check the exact temperatures for Asker (and any other place in the world), visit yr.no.
